

This is an example of some text with variant readings recorded as ‘A’ footnotes. From here on, though, we shall have ‘C’. For spice, let us mark a longer passage, but give a different lemma for it, so that we don’t get a huge amount of text in a note. Finally, we shouldn’t forget the paragraphed notes, which are so useful when there are a great number of short notes to be recorded.

This is a second paragraph, giving more examples of text with variant readings recorded as ‘A’ footnotes. From here on, though, we shall have ‘B’ notes in the text. For spice, let us mark a longer passage, but give a different lemma for it, so that we don’t get a huge amount of text in a note. Finally, we shouldn’t forget the column notes, which are so useful when there are many short notes to be recorded.

|              |                              |   |
|--------------|------------------------------|---|
| <hr/>        |                              |   |
| 1 example :: | eximemple C, D.              | 6 examples ::                                |
| 1 variant :: | alternative, A, B.           | 6 variant ::  |
| 2 though ::  | however $\alpha, \beta$      | alternative, A, B.                                  |
| <hr/>        |                              |   |
| 2 ‘C’]       | B, pace the text      | 9 shouldn’t]  |
| 7 though]    | however $\alpha, \beta$      | ought not to  |
| 7 ‘B’]       | B, as correctly              | L, M  |
|              | stated in the text           | 10 forget the]                                      |
| 9 Finally]   | In the end X,                | omit to   |
| Y            |                              | mention the §, ¶                                    |
| 9 we]        | we here K                    | 10 column]  |
|              |                              | blocked M, N  |
|              |                              | 10 notes]   |
|              |                              | variants H  |
|              |                              | 10 useful]  |
|              |                              | very, very useful                                   |
|              |                              | L, P  |
|              |                              | 10 many]  |
|              |                              | lots of Z   |
|              |                              | 11 recorded]  |
|              |                              | recorded and  |
|              |                              | put down: M   |
|              |                              | (repetition)  |
| <hr/>        |                              |   |
| 2–4          | For spice ... note:          | The note here is type ‘C’                           |
| 8–9          | For spice, ... note:         | This is a rogue note of type ‘C’.                   |
| <hr/>        |                              |   |
| 3 huge:      | vast E, F; note that this is | a ‘D’ note to section of text within a longer lemma |
| 9 huge:      | vast E, F; note that this is | a ‘D’ note to text within a longer lemma.           |
| <hr/>        |                              |   |
| 4 Finally:   | in the end X, Y              | 4 we: us K  |
| 4 the:       | omit to mention the §, ¶     | 4 shouldn’t: ought not to L, M                      |
| 5 useful:    | truly useful L, P            | 4 forget  |
| 5 noted:     | repetition                   | 4 paragraphed: blocked M, N                         |
|              |                              | 4 notes: variants HH, KK                            |
|              |                              | 5 a great number of: many, many (preferably)        |
|              |                              | 5 recorded:   |